Speaker:

Jamie Falo from the Greensburg/Hempfield Area Library. As a favorite virtual and physical destination, the Greensburg Hempfield Area Library (GHAL) inspires collaboration, change, creativity, and curiosity by preserving local history and serving the community. GHAL offers you so many options. Traditional reading materials are available during generous business hours, as well as electronic versions from the comfort of your own home at any time. You'll be able to choose from programs for all ages on a variety of topics. Other organizations in the community join in as we come together to serve you with programming and information. If you need help with ever-changing technology, or your printer simply ran out of ink, GHAL has you covered. For the hundreds of people who walk through our doors every day, there is a service. The staff can help you find the answer or information to lead you to the next step of your quest. The 60+ volunteers are members of the community who have benefited from our service and wish to help us serve you in our mission. We are thankful for them and for our community. Located in downtown Greensburg at 237 S Pennsylvania Ave. Jamie can be reached via email at jamie.falo@wlnonline.org or their website at www.ghal.org

Our meeting ended in the usual way with the Four Way Test.
